

Welcome To My Website

Contributed by Olds
Thursday, 07 January 2010

Welcome To My Website.

Some of you who've dropped by before are probably wondering where all the content has gone - it is with heavy heart that I change the site's purpose.

From now on I will attempt to switch this venue's focus to my ongoing career, with the social animal in me relocated to an upcoming web location currently under development...

This, of course, means this place will likely be a lot less interesting to friends and family!

It's a necessary step however. Now that my Masters dissertation is complete this place has to reflect my renewed focus on taking on new challenges and moving forward with my career.

So for my previous patrons I both apologise and thank you for dropping by to view the infrequent updates I made. A new home for that will be announced soon.

To all new arrivals, via my career or otherwise, I hope you find what you're looking for.

All the best, and take care,

Paul.